International students

- The enrollment fee is paid in the first year only.
- In the case of a newly enrolled student, if the student pays the full tuition and then receives the tuition exemption after admission, he or she will receive a refund for the amount of the exemption. For students in their second or subsequent year, a new bank transfer form with the reduced tuition amount will be sent to the student if he or she has met academic standards and is recognized as eligible for the tuition exemption.
- In principle, students are expected to pay the entire amount when completing the admission procedure. However, students are permitted to pay the tuition, general equipment and facilities fee, laboratory and activity fees, and educational enhancement fee in two installments per year.
- Students enrolling in the Faculty of Letters' Department of History, Faculty of Economics (daytime courses), or Faculty of Business Administration (daytime courses) are required to pay a separate academic society fee. (Faculty of Letters' Department of History: 6,000 yen; Faculty of Economics [daytime courses]: 1,000 yen; Department of Business Administration [daytime courses]: 4,000 yen)
- Some courses taken following admission will require payment of activity fees.
- Paid enrollment fees and submitted documents will not be returned.
- Payment amounts may change for students who exceed a prescribed course term.
