では＜対話文 1＞を始めます。

W: Hello?

M: Jenny, it's Dad. Can you record the Channel 5 News on TV for me tonight?

W: Sure, Dad. But why's it so important?

M: A reporter is coming to my chess-club meeting today, and I might be interviewed.

W: Wow, that's exciting. I won't forget it.

M: Question. What does Jenny's father ask her to do?

＜対話文 2＞を始めます。

M: Hi, I'm checking in for the flight to Japan. My name is John Banks.

W: OK, Mr. Banks. May I see your passport, please?

M: Sure. Here it is. And I'd like to order a vegetarian meal, if possible.

W: I'm sorry, sir. Special requests need to be made at least two days before.

M: Question. What does the man ask the woman about?

＜対話文 3＞を始めます。

M: Nanako, before we go to dinner, could you take me to a camera store?

W: Sure, Patrick. Are you going to buy a camera?

M: Not yet. I just want to know the prices.

W: Well, there are lots of places here in Yokohama. There's a large camera shop nearby, and their prices are very cheap.

M: Question. What does Patrick want to do first?

これで問 1 を終わり、問 2 に入ります。

【問2】

次の英文の内容を注意して聞きなさい。後から、英語による質問が3つ出題されます。質問に対する答えを選んで、その記号を答えなさい。

W:

In Japan, there are many natural disasters like typhoons, earthquakes, and heavy rain. Imagine that a big typhoon is coming to your city. Do you know where you should go? Do you know people who can help you? If you have this information, you can act quickly and quietly in an emergency. Your city government may have a hazard map which tells you about dangerous places. But it is important to make your own hazard map, too. It should have not only dangerous places but also some other important places near your house. For example, you should add a place to meet your family or ways to go to safe places. You must think about protecting yourself from disasters.

How can you make your own hazard map that is useful in an emergency? First, visit the website of your city and check the safe places near your house with your family and neighbors. Some people should go to a school, and other people should go to a community center. Next, share information about dangerous places. For example, someone may say, "This road will be under water if we have heavy rain." After talking with each other, walk around your area to check. It is a good idea to put pictures of the dangerous places on your map, so take a camera with you. Children and elderly people need to go with you because they may notice other dangers you miss. You should also decide which places to check before going. By doing so, you can finish quickly. After the fieldwork, make a map with all of the information you collected.

In an emergency, you may have some problems you cannot solve by yourself. In this case, you will need to work together with your neighbors. It is easy to help each other if you know them well. So, why don't you greet your neighbors first to connect with them? Making a map will also give you chances to talk more with your neighbors. Good communication will make your society stronger against disasters.

M: Question 1. Why is it important to make your own hazard map?

M: Question 2. How can you get information about dangerous places for your hazard map?

M: Question 3. Why is greeting your neighbors important?
